Excerpt: . . . iable information that is collected by Internet companies. The bill requires that a Web site provide customers with a notice of its practice and allow customers the opportunity to prevent their information from being sold to third parties. This approach provides for privacy protection without imposing a burdensome regulatory framework and without a Federal bureaucracy overseeing the various business practices of Internet companies. The bill puts in place general statutory rules, but leaves industry free to determine how best to comply with them. It is imperative that steps are taken, preferably by industry, but by government where necessary, to protect the integrity, security, and privacy of the Internet. By introducing this legislation, however, I am not suggesting that government must play a role in ensuring Internet integrity and privacy. Indeed, I would prefer to encourage private sector solutions within the industry, and I hope to hear your thoughts on what is being done to develop these non-governmental solutions. Now is the time for the various interests--private industry, law enforcement, other government agencies, and...
